

With eyes on the floor, 20 rugs that aren't just for stepping on

Bolder rugs, others more classic. A treat for the senses. Don't let yourself be formatted, choose yours.

Gone are the days when rugs were very boring pieces: square, rectangular or round, with obvious colors and formatted designs, according to prevailing styles and tastes.

Even so, history has left us with many works of art made to step on. Palaces and residences around the world preserve examples that are worth admiring, they are true artistic objects, mainly due to the design and quality of the materials.

Nowadays, the panorama has undergone developments. Brands broke chains, became more irreverent and daring. They gained creative freedom. The materials also underwent an evolution. In the days that go by, our feet have started to step on a wide variety of raw materials, some simply natural, others more sophisticated.

The drawings and, above all, the shapes of the rugs freed the chains. There is now a wide variety to choose from. The simply round, square or rectangular models were joined by asymmetrical or cut-out rugs, for example, even recreating the marks of time or the appearance of being used, among other interesting details.

It is therefore recommended that you keep your eyes on the ground. They are rugs that were born to be contemplated and not just to give comfort to those who step on them. A treat for the senses.
